ABSTRACTS AND POSTERS ON THE TOPIC

«Cases from everyday cardiology (case reports)»

can be sent to the following address: info@contenter.ch

We look forward to receiving your exciting cases.

Dear colleagues, dear interested parties,

We are delighted to present you the programme of the Zurich review course 2018.

The 16th edition addresses all current topics of clinical cardiology and focuses on important innovations in the areas of atrial fibrillation, cardiac insufficiency, anticoagulation, interventional cardiology, congenital heart defects, pericarditis and hypertrophic cardiomyopathy.

A few examples for the topics of the review course are: PCSK9 inhibitors and familial hypercholesterolaemia, vegetarian diet, surgical and catheter revascularisation, anticoagulation, pulmonary hypertension, pulmonary insufficiency, and of course, percutaneous valve interventions.

This year the training course is mainly based on cases from everyday life in the practice. The aim is also to provide you with an update on the most important topics of clinical cardiology and to answer your practical questions. We have tried to plan enough time to deal with the topics interactively.

Outstanding speakers from all parts of Switzerland as well as international experts, such as Prof. Heidi Connolly, Prof. David Holmes and Prof. Leslie Cooper from the Mayo Clinic Rochester, and Prof. Perry Elliott from London, aim to make the course as exciting as possible. Ask questions during the sessions or during the break, all speakers are looking forward to your contribution (use the question app for your smartphone).

On Thursday, 12 April 2018 (presentations mostly in German) the highlights include: PCSK9 inhibitors, cardiac insufficiency (including also after pacemakers), vegetarian diets (!), coronary heart disease, anticoagulants and the important and frequent atrial fibrillation.

On Friday, 13 April 2018 (presentations in English) the highlights include: congenital heart disease, cardiac valve diseases (including TAVR), an exciting series on cardiomyopathies and a renewed attempt to look into the future (percutaneous interventions on mitral and tricuspid valves).

On Saturday 14 April 2018 (Belvoirpark, next to the «Klinik im Park») the programme includes exciting English presentations on mitral valve diseases, MitraClip, atrial appendage occlusion and hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, and live echo demonstrations.

We are pleased to welcome you back again!

Best regards
